

Generally, clawback provisions are included in agreements and are a function of the program participants complying with the requirements. If a participant fails to meet contractual requirements or substantially comply with milestones, funding is not disbursed. If agreements are rescinded and/or funds are recaptured, these will be noted in the applicable economic development projects activities report.